Given the nature of creeping planning applications I believe that this retrospective application to keep the road was actually planned from the start, and allowing this application will lead to another application in a year or so to make this a full time access road over to the cemetery - something which was rejected when originally proposed.

Therefore I object to this retrospective planning application and believe that once no-longer needed for construction traffic this roadway should be removed and the land returned to public use.

In the original proposals we were given a choice of two routes to the cemetery, it now transpires 'retrospectively' that they want both. We suspect this was the plan from the outset. We vehemently opposed the link to Imjin Road then and we do so again now. Any permanent increase in the traffic to Imjin Road we consider unacceptable, it would clearly have safety and access implications for all of the road's residents.

The permission was granted for the temporary road on the understanding that it was returned to public use as it was before. This is what we believe would be right and proper.
