

Appendix C

Objection 1

I am not convinced that A boards are necessary. Both sides of the building have narrow uneven paving which don't need any more pavement hazards taking up room for passage of pedestrians. Not convinced A boards fit in with the look of the buildings.

The comments concerning the A board are an objection. This is because unnecessary objects on the pavement constitute a hazard to passers by because of those with sight loss and those who use things such as wheelchairs or pushchairs. Aesthetically A boards add to clutter on the walkway for no apparent reason. This is a busy area used by and surrounded by hospitality premises.
